“ Jewel was raised in the shadow of the Virginia Blue Ridge and like most of all the families, in that remote country setting, just trying to survive was a major chore in those days. Most were self sufficient and frugal. After WWII she met a returning VET and her life partner, Clyde Foster Pike. They both retained their heritage work ethic. At first they had nothing but went on to build a legacy of business together with love and hard work. They were together 75 years and passed from this earth weeks apart. They left family members who loved them and who cherish their memory. They were true all Americans. She was my wonderful sister in law and a part of our family all these years. She will be missed and our thoughts and prayers are extended to each love one.
