The day Kevin and I became friends. Glad I got this on video and got a few more where we traveled the next year fishing. Such a great person he loved his family, friends, and fishing. He will be missed by many.

“ Kevin grew up just down the road from me, and some of my craziest teenage days were spent in his company. The best memories being the time he made it into the newspaper when a baboon chased him out of his home!

On the way to school one morning the guy I was riding with hit his dog he grew up with, I took off my jacket and carried him to Teresa, later that day I had class with him. That evening and the next day I saw just how soft his heart really was. When I was 16, my parents home caught on fire, and Kevin, long story short, saved my life. After he found the Lord and settled down in life, I couldnt have been more proud of him! He turned into the father and husband I knew all along he could be! We didnt stay in touch a lot, but during a couple of the darkest moments in my life, Kevin was there to give the most kindest, and smartest advice. He will always be just one of us kids from Hinchey Hollow, and a dear friend. You will be missed more than you know Kevin!!

Cindy, I had forgotten about the gorilla story til I read that. We were dating at the time and we were on the phone when that happened. I thought he was messing with me, until he told me it was eating Teresa's makeup.

When he came running through our front door, without knocking and sheet white, we knew something was wrong!! He just couldn't get it out, he had ran all the way to the house, he was out of breath! "Call the police! A monkey's in my house!!" Knowing Kevin we had to ask him if he was ok, because who has a monkey break in their house! Sure enough! We all sat in Moms car watching as animal control tried to get it! Lol That was 25 yrs ago because I was pregnant with my oldest son!

“ *Kevin was a good neighbor and great friend. He helped me in many ways. Kevin fixed my boat, and when something tore up he always fixed it. Kevin was a master carpenter. He completely remodeled my home. Kevin was a family man with two boys, a beautiful daughter and loving wife. I will miss him.
